Award-winning short film Kentucky 31 comes to festivals

Community leaders are hosting a screening of the new, award-winning short Kentucky 31 at theatres around the country

Kentucky 31 follows “everyman” Henry Dawson as he tries to make sense of a devastating family loss. Although his quest starts out small, Henry soon learns that the power of love and acceptance through his daughter’s eyes is truly the cure for all.

The film explores these issues and identifies how our daily reliance on “just getting by” threatens not only long lasting relationships, but human health, too. Ultimately, Sometimes what you don't want is exactly what you need.

The screening and award win at the Charleston International Film Festival 2016 is part of Kentucky 31’s campaign to have screenings in towns across the country by the end of 2017.

We at Kentucky 31 recognize the importance of family entertainment that teaches a lesson. We hope you’ll bring Kentucky 31 to your town.
